

The RLC Institution

The RLC Institution (RLCi) promotes professional excellence within the Royal Logistic Corps (RLC) so that its soldiers and officers can be the best military logisticians possible. It achieves this by:

- Providing a focus for the RLC's professional engagement with logistics organisations from industry, academia and professional bodies.
- Championing and supporting professional development of serving members of the RLC.
- Promoting exchanges of ideas, experiences and concepts of its RLC personnel, the wider military community and our civilian industry counterparts.
- Interacting with industry to showcase the capabilities and qualities of RLC specialist trades.

About THE RLC REVIEW

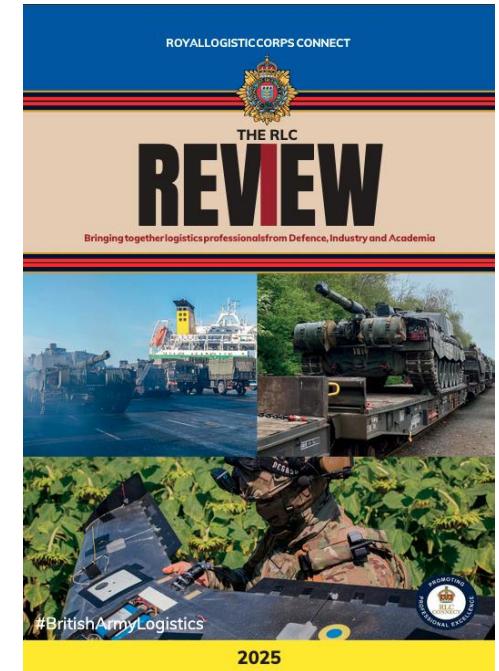

Now its 24th year, THE RLC REVIEW Magazine is the professional logistics journal of the RLC. Published in Spring 2026, it contains a wide range of articles covering a variety of interesting military topics including: logistics, personal interviews, AI, technology & innovation, operations, training, policy, military history and thought leadership.

Advertising in THE RLC REVIEW is a unique opportunity for independent schools, colleges, universities but especially our civilian industry colleagues and partners who maybe linked or have an interest or passion in our own RLC specialist trades such as: Ammunition Officer & Technician, Photographer, Chef, Driver including Tank Transporter Operator & Support Specialist, Air Dispatcher, Supply Chain Operator, Marine Engineer, Mariner, Movement Controller, Port Operator, Post & Courier and System Analyst. All our RLC trades can be found at: Regular Soldier Careers

Hard copies are also archived at the RLC Museum which we encourage everyone to visit if passing Worth Down which is close to Winchester City (M3 Juc 9 or A303/A34).

Need a reason to advertise in THE RLC REVIEW
Its reaches 1,000s of serving and retired military personnel looking for schools and colleges.

Since its first publication in 2002, THE RLC REVIEW has been an excellent way for independent schools and colleges to promote their own institution to service families.

We offer schools 10% discounted rate, with further 5% discount for previous advertisers. Interested readers can get in touch direct for advertisement.

“The broad spectrum of authors and diversity of articles in The RLC REVIEW illustrates that anyone can make a valuable contribution to contemporary debates and the professional challenges we all face.”

Wilson James: Teamwork, adversity, opportunity, determination, sacrifice, hard work and occasionally a large helping of luck

Wilson James is a private limited company, with a growing, diversified global portfolio. Committed to the delivery of high quality engineering services, Wilson James is a company, which started trading from a humble base in 1991, is a valued corporate partner of the Royal Logistic Corps. We are a family run business, which means that we give a personal right to the business, have, in the near future, the commercial content may change and the work of the Engineer & Logistic Staff Corps.
